Competition Format and Rules

競技形式および規則 / Format et règlement des compétitions

As of THU 1 JUL 2021

OLYMPIC COMPETITION FORMAT

The Olympic equestrian eventing discipline at the Tokyo 2020 Olympic Games comprises two separate events: the eventing team event and the eventing individual event. Eventing is made up of the following distinct tests: dressage, cross country and jumping. Each test takes place on consecutive days during which the athlete rides the same horse. The results of each test count towards both the eventing individual and the eventing team events. A team consists of three athlete/horse combinations and one reserve athlete/horse combination. The team total points are the sum of the total points of the three athletes. After the three tests, eventing team medals are awarded. The 25 best placed athletes (including all athletes tied for 25th place), after the first jumping test qualify to participate in the jumping individual final. The final ranking of the individual athletes is determined by the combined points earned in all four tests (dressage, cross country, first jumping test, jumping individual final). The tests are as follows:

Dressage test

This test of compulsory movements evaluates the horse's obedience, flexibility and harmony with the athlete. Judges award marks for each movement. The total score is then converted into penalty points to which the penalty points of the cross country and jumping tests are added.

Cross country test

Each athlete/horse combination attempts to complete the course, within a prescribed length of time, without jumping errors. The cross country test will require up to 45 jumping efforts.

PHASE	DISTANCE	SPEED	TIME
	Metres (m)	Metres per minute (m/min)	Minutes (min)
Cross country test	5700-6270	570	10 - 11

The ground jury may reduce course distances, for example in the case of extreme weather conditions.

The height of fixed and solid cross country obstacles may not exceed 1.20m. The overall height of a natural hedge or brush fence may not exceed 1.40m.

Jumping test

This is the final session of the eventing competition and requires competitors to jump 10 to 12 obstacles similar in nature to those found in the jumping event, though not as difficult. The test consists of a maximum of 15 jumping efforts and is designed to demonstrate that horses have retained their suppleness and correct training after the cross country test. The length of the course will be between approximately 500 and 600 metres. The required speed will be 375 metres per minute.

The first jumping test will determine the team classification and act as a qualifier for the individual final. The second jumping test is used to determine the individual classification. The 25 best placed athletes after the first jumping test, including those who tie for 25th place, will participate in the second jumping test.

In the jumping test, the height of the jumps is limited to 1.25m in the first jumping test, and 1.30m in the second jumping test.

Horse inspections

The first and second horse inspections will be open to the public. They will be conducted in the main stadium. In order to be eligible to compete in the event, a horse must undergo and pass two horse inspections, one on the day prior to the dressage test and a second inspection before the jumping test(s).

These two inspections are conducted by the ground jury and the veterinary delegate. In addition, there are two examinations performed by the veterinarian, the first on the arrival of the horse at the stables, the second after the athlete has completed the cross country test.

DIFFERENCES BETWEEN THE FEI WORLD CHAMPIONSHIPS AND THE OLYMPIC GAMES

At FEI World Championships, teams comprise four athlete/horse combinations, with the three best athlete scores being combined to give the team score. In the Olympic Games, teams comprise three athlete/horse combinations with all scores counting for the team score. At the Olympic Games, an additional jumping phase will decide the final classification of the individual athletes.

CHANGES SINCE THE RIO 2016 OLYMPIC GAMES

The maximum number of athletes per NOC has been reduced from four to three, meaning that all team members' scores count to the team total.

Teams are now allowed to have a reserve athlete/horse combination and make one athlete/horse substitution during competition. The substitution would replace the substituted combination and carry its penalties obtained so far in the competition. This incurs an additional 20-point team penalty.

An athlete/horse combination that fails to complete one of the tests will receive a fixed score for that test (100 for dressage and jumping, 200 for cross country) for the team event. They can continue to compete in the team event providing the horse passes the horse inspection or veterinary review.

Only athlete/horse combination having completed the first three tests are eligible to participate in the second jumping test/individual final.

SPORT RULES AND PROCEDURES

Competition method

In the dressage test, marks awarded by the judges are converted into penalty points.

In the cross country test, penalties for faults at obstacles are added to penalties incurred for excess time.

In the first jumping test, penalties for faults at obstacles are added to penalties incurred for excess time.

In the second jumping test (for the 25 best placed athletes, including those who tie for 25th place), penalties for faults at obstacles are added to penalties incurred for excess time.

Team

The team with the lowest total number of penalty points, after three tests, will be declared the winner.

Individual

The competitor with the lowest total number of penalty points, after four tests, will be declared the winner.

Tiebreak rules

Team

In the event of a tie:

- The best combined highest three placings of the three members of each team in the individual ranking after the first jumping test will be added together,
  1. with priority given to the team with the three same members completing all three tests without substitution

2. then the team with two members completing three tests without substitution
  3. then the team with only one member completing the three tests without substitution
- In the event of equality between two or more teams with the same number of substitutions, the classification will be decided by the best combined highest placings of the combinations having completed all three tests (e.g. Team A with athletes ranked second, eighth and 12th (total 22) will be ranked above Team B with athletes ranked first, seventh and 15th (total 23)).
  - If the tie remains, the classification will be decided by the best combined cross country score (including faults at obstacles, time penalties and other penalties incurred) of the combinations within each team having completed all three tests.
  - If the tie remains, the classification will be decided by the best combined team jumping test score (including faults at obstacles, time penalties) of the combinations within each team having completed all three tests.
  - If the tie remains, the classification will be decided by the best combined dressage score of the combinations within each team having completed all three tests.
  - If still equal the ties shall be declared (order of NOC codes).

Individual

In the event of a tie, the classification will be decided as follows:

1. Best overall cross country score
2. Cross country time closest to the optimum time
3. Best individual final jumping score
4. Best individual qualifier jumping score
5. Best time (fastest) in the individual final jumping
6. Best total of overall impression mark in the dressage test
7. If still equal the ties will remain in the final classification by order of NOC codes

Disqualification rules

An athlete disqualified for unsportsmanlike behaviour or serious misconduct will receive no rank and will be listed at the bottom of the individual ranking. If the athlete is part of a team in the team event, the team will also be disqualified.

Protests/appeals

The NOCs may protest or appeal according to the FEI rules.

Description of Obstacles

障害物の説明 / Description des obstacles

Obstacle 1 – Flower stand

Very straight forward first fence with uphill approach

Obstacle 2 – Wind Shrine

A galloping fence (1.20m High) with 1.80m top spread and should help with letting the horses and riders get into a rhythm and create confidence.

Obstacle 3 – Chop Sticks

As they get to the top of the hill, they will encounter this maximum size open oxer (1.20m high with 1.80m top spread) which will give them another positive fence before heading to the first combination on course. The MIM system frangible technology has been installed on this fence.

Obstacle 4 – Lakehouse

This fence will lead them into the first water combination. While this fence (1.20m High) has a more sloping profile thus not feeling as big, it will determine how they get to the Log which drops them into the water.

Obstacles 5A/5B/5C – The Sanctuary (Log drop to Fish in the water)

How they jump the Lakehouse will determine if they ride in the forward distance to the Log drop (1.80m drop) or if they will opt to add another stride on the right bend before they jump into the first water. Once in the water the fast route is to continue to the Fish which can either be ridden on a direct line or off a little right bend. There is a long option which takes them over a different Lakehouse (4) and then on to a Log (5A) before the water and then on to the two Birds in the Water(5BC) which are set on a two-stride distance. This level of difficulty in this route is less plus it will take more time.

Obstacle 6 – Park Footbridge

This fence (1.20M High) should come out of the stride but the riders will need to pay attention. This fence and the ensuing gallop (450m to the next fence) should let the horses and riders settle before the next group of jumps. The MIM system frangible technology as well as the Reverse Pin has been installed on this fence.

Obstacle 7 – 2020 Overlook Log

After the long gallop, the riders will want to put their horses on a more active shorter stride to give them the best preparation for a positive jump here. While the log is very inviting the ground drops away just behind the jump and will take them down a steep slope to the approach of the next obstacle. Once down the steep slope they will bend around to the left which will lead them to the Lake Sea Forest combination.

Obstacle 8ABCD/9ABC – Lake Sea Forest

As they approach this combination, they will need to have their plan as there are two different routes through this complex. The direct route will have them jump a Log with a 1.80m drop into water followed by right hand bend to one of the Fishing Boats in the water. They will then keep bending right to the up bank out of the water and then directly to a left-handed corner. To attempt the direct way the horse will need to be brave and bold jumping into the water and then immediately be under control to make the turn to the next two elements. Once they have jumped the up bank, they will need to be deliberate and accurate to jump the Left-hand corner obstacle. The longer route will give the riders more time and distance to carry out the exercise over remarkably similar obstacles.

Obstacle 10 – Station House

The Station House is a big wide Table (1.80m Top Spread) that should come out of the stride and will give them a little breather before heading to the 3rd water complex.

Obstacle 11ABC – Dragon Fly Water

After the Station House they will gallop up a steep hill and then immediately back down a steep hill as they approach the Dragon Fly water. These grade changes could be tiring but they will also require the riders to keep their horse in a good balance and under control as they approach the Narrow Chevron brush which will ride big as the ground drops away on the landing. As they land on the slope, they will only have a couple of strides before entering the water and then once they are in the water they will only have a couple of strides before they come to another Chevron brush in the water. The rider will need to keep their position to enhance their chances of being perfectly accurate through this combination. The alternate route here is not as demanding but still does require them to jump two narrow Chevron brushes albeit with much more distance between them. There are a lot of terrain changes in this combination which start right from the steep approach all the way to jumping the chevron brush in the water.

Obstacle 12AB – Harbor Turn

The long gallop (470m) prior to this fence will let them catch their breath however once they start getting close to this combination, they will need to know their line and maintain the power up the steep slope to have enough stride to make the distance between the two jumps ( Roll with Brush, 1.40m high brushed). I would anticipate all to go the straightway however there is an alternative line here that may be safe for some.

Obstacle 13 – Picnic Table

A galloping fence (1.20m high, 1.80m Top spread) which needs respect, but which should ride well and out of the stride.

Obstacle 14ABCD – Lone Tree Moguls

After a long gallop (385m) the riders will need to make sure their horse is under control and in a good balance as they approach the Large Oxer (1.20m high, 1.80m Top spread) on the Mogul. This fence will ride big with the landing falling away and is immediately followed a few strides later by a left-handed corner (1.20m High) which is set off the edge of another mogul. To go the straight route here the riders will need a positive horse with power to jump across the oxer and then upon landing they will have to know the line to get to the corner on the correct number of strides. As there is a right bend to the corner, they will have to be quite precise in knowing the turn which will work for their horse. The horses will need to be honest and stay on the line to the corner to avoid having a run out. The longer option here will have them jumping a Nest before bending right to a different Left-hand corner which is not as big (1.15 High) and then proceeding to the other Nest. This route will give more time between the jumps and will burn up more time on the clock.

Obstacle 15 – Stonebridge

A good let up fence which is big (1.20m High, 1.70m Top spread) but which they should jump easily.

Obstacle 16ABC – Mt. Fuji Drop

As they approach this set of jumps the riders will know the various routes and which one they are likely to take. The more direct route has them jumping down a large drop (1.80 drop) then bending left a few strides later a narrow brush jump and then continuing left-handed down the slope to a right-handed corner. The straightway requires a brave horse jumping down the drop which will then stay focused and keep the line to the brush and then maintain control down the slope and stay straight to the corner. The longer route still must jump down the drop, but the ensuing brush and right-handed corner have more distance between them which will give the rider more time for preparation.

Obstacle 17– The Dragon

After having jumped the Mt. Fuji drop combination the riders will be happy to have this galloping type fence. While the Dragon head in the middle is quite ornate the Horses and Riders will be jumping either side which will have a big ditch in front of the brushed Dragon wings. They should not need to slow down as they jump it out of the stride.

Obstacle 18ABCD – Bumps and Stumps

As they approach up the rise, they will encounter a set of MIM rails (1.12m high) that will be followed one stride later by a ditch at the bottom of the slope and then one stride up the slope to the Narrow Brush Stump (1.40m high brushed). The horses will need to be in and active canter and not too long as they will need to be positive over the rails which have a MIM frangible device on them and will need to be jumped carefully so as not to activate the device. Once over the rails they will pop over the ditch but then they will need to stay straight to negotiate the Narrow Brush Stump. The longer route here has many of the same type of fences just on a different jumping line and with less intense grade changes.

Obstacle 19 – Samurai Sword

This jump is a replica of a Samurai Sword (1.20m high) set over a ditch. If the riders are behind in their time this is a stretch where they could make up some time as the jump itself should not slow them down.

Obstacle 20ABCD – Mt. Fuji Water

The mounds before the water are quite imposing and will require the riders to stay positive as they approach the Houses at the top. The direct way is much steeper going up and just as steep going down. The horses will need to have energy and be brave as they jump the House at the top while staying on a balanced stride down the slope to stay on the line to the right-handed Corner in the water. The steepness of the slope could have some horses shortening their stride when they land from the cabin and others may have the opposite happen with horses lengthening their stride. It is up to the riders to know their horses so they can plan accordingly for their ride to the corner. They want to have a good jump over the Corner so they can keep moving to the Bear at the top of the rise. If the horses do not jump across the corner with power, then the distance to the Bear could get long. The longer option gives the riders much more time between the obstacles to prepare themselves, but it will eat up seconds on the clock.

Obstacle 21 – Temple Steps

As this fence is just three from the finish it should give the riders a good feeling to know they are almost done. The Steps are quite straightforward and should ride well. As before they need to pay attention and not get careless.

Obstacle 22AB – Bullet Trains

A simple right bending line combination but one that asks the riders to stay organized and in control as they near the finish. Depending on their bend they will have options as to how many strides they get between the two trains. The trains are a likeness of the Bullet Trains that are seen throughout Japan.

Obstacle 23 – Penultimate Gate

A very inviting fence and one that the riders will be happy to see.

Description of Fences

フェンスの説明 / Description des obstacles

Fence 1 - The Great Wave off Kanagawa. Hokusai.

Author: (Katsushika Hokusai)

Original Title: (Kanagawa-oki nami ura)

Year: 1829 – 1832

Base/stand: Colour-engraved upon a wooden block.

Japanese ukiyo-e master.

The Great Wave is the most recognized piece by Japanese painter Katsushika Hokusai, who specializes in ukiyo-e. Published between 1830 and 1833 during the Edo period, it forms part of the collection “Thirty-six views of Mount Fuji”, even though Mount Fuji is the smallest element.

The wave references the relentless force of nature, the sea, and the importance this event has in Japan’s economy and its cultural development, given the country is formed by 4 islands.

Fence 2 - Kanto Matsuri. Akita Festival.

The Kanto Matsuri (竿燈まつり, "pole lantern festival") is a Tanabata related celebration in Akita City, held every year from the 3rd to the 6th of August.

From out all the different actions which take place at the Akita festival, the most fascinating one, is how all the participants are able to keep the Kanto (long poles made out of bamboo with a paper lantern on the top) in equilibrium. These poles can reach a length of 12 metres and a weight of approximately 50 kilograms. They can have up to 46 paper lamps with lit candles inside them. Once the drums, flutes and songs start to sound ("Dokkoisho", "Dokkoisho"), each kanto is pulled up by only one person, which using different techniques makes it keep on equilibrium. Gradually, more extensions are added until the pole reaches its maximum height.

The main event of this festival are the night-time parades where different groups participate and there are approximately 250 kantos. This event takes place along Chuo Dori street in Akita.

Fence 3 - FEI. 100 YEARS.

Fence 4 - Nihonbashi Bridge. Tokyo.

Nihonbashi, (literally: Japanese bridge), is the name of a business neighbourhood which belongs to the district of Chuō in Tokyo (Japan). In this neighbourhood we can find the famous bridge that bears same name.

It is considered as one of the most important level steps of the Tōkkaidō of the Edo period. It was the most important commercial point in the country as it was the starting point of five of the busiest routes of the time.

The bridge has been destroyed by earthquakes and wars on several occasions. At present, the Nihonbashi Bridge is crossed by an elevated expressway.

The bridge is said to have been built in 1603 under the order of Tokugawa Ieyasu. The next year, the starting point of Gokaido, or five major roads, was made and became the symbol of the prosperous city of Edo, the centre of Japan.

The current twin arch bridge made of stone was completed in 1911. The kirin statue under the bridge light in the centre of the bridge depicts the prosperity of the city of Tokyo when it was made, and the shishi statues at the four corners depict protection. The Nihonbashi was designated as an Important Cultural Property of Japan.

Fence 5ABC - Red thread legend.

According to this myth, everyone is tied by the little finger with an invisible red thread that will lead them to another person which who they will make history.

The two people connected by this thread will have an important history, no matter the place, the time or the circumstances. The red thread can be tangled, collapsed and stretched, as surely often happens, but it can never be broken.

The ulnar artery connects the heart to the little finger. This thin vein that goes from the heart to the hand extends through the invisible world to finish its course in someone else's heart.

Unlike other legends, the Japanese is not limited to the couple, or to a single person we are destined to find. It speaks of a sort of arterial ramification that arises from a finger towards all those with whom we will make history and all those we help in one way or another.

The Red Thread myth is a way to understand our relationships with other people as a default plot where all the little stories of which, in one way or another we are part of, and how they are not casual but part of a network of red threads that are there from the beginning.

According to this legend, there is an old man who lives on the moon and leaves every night seeking among the spirits those akin to gather on earth, who have something to teach each other, and when he finds them he ties a red thread to find their way. So, our red threads end up in someone else.

Fence 6 - Japanese Seigaiha Symbol.

The Seigaiha or wave is a pattern of layered concentric circles creating arches, symbolic of waves or water and representing surges of good luck. It can also signify power and resilience.

Fence 7 - Shinkyō bridge. The Nikkō mausoleum.

Nikkō Bridge Shinkyō (神橋, Shinkyō) is located at the entrance before reaching the temple and shrines area of Nikkō, surrounded by a spectacular nature.

It belongs to the Futarasan Shrine (二荒山神社) is a beautiful and ancient shrine that can be found in Nikkō. This bridge is listed as one of the three most beautiful bridges in Japan next to the Kintaiyō Bridge of Iwakuni and the Saruhashi of Yamanashi prefecture.

The Shinkyō bridge that can be seen at present was built in the year 1636 but until 1973 was not open to the public.

Fence 8 - Kokeshi dolls.

The Kokeshi are the traditional Japanese dolls. Originally crafted in Tokohu, a region in the North of Japan, an area most commonly known for its spas and thermal waters. Those considered to be the most traditional are called Naruko, and they are crafted in Miyagi.

Its origin dates back to the 17th century, halfway down through the Edo period.

They are handmade and crafted in wood from either the dark cherry or the lighter mizuki tree. The original kokeshi dolls were crafted following a simple design and had an elongated shape mixed with subtle colours. As years have passed, more designs have appeared, always keeping one main characteristic in common, the lack of arms and legs.

The body is usually decorated with floral motifs or with the appearance of a kimono, despite this, there are many different kinds, with different sizes and patterns.

They are considered to be both decorative and good luck amulets. As the wood with which they are carved, the Mizuki, has a high resistance to fire, they are often bought to protect the house from fires.

There are two types of kokeshi, traditional and creative or "Sosaku". The latter are relatively new, often so extraordinary in their expression that they have a high artistic value.

Fence 9AB - Good luck charm. Daruma.

Daruma (達磨) "Japanese amulet"

Ritual Ceremony: Daruma Kuyo (だるま供養)

Shorinzan Daruma Temple in Takasaki

Every year, during the month of January (6th & 7th) more than 400.000 Japanese reach the temple in search of a daruma for the incoming year. The Daruma is considered a motivational amulet. It is considered to be motivational because it motivates us and gives us strength so that we can achieve what we propose. The daruma is a representation of the objective that we have self-imposed, a way to remember, a motivation, so that we do not feel weak during the process. Fall seven times, come back eight.

Japanese proverb

Once we've set our objective, we must colour in one of the eyes.

During the process, we must work hard in order to reach our objective.

Once we reach our objective, we will colour in the other eye symbolizing our thankfulness and satisfaction.

Fence 10 - Sakura.

The cherry tree flower is seen as a metaphor of life, which is considered to be beautiful but at the same ephemeral. This is why it is so admired.

Cherry trees (Sakura Zensen) start blooming during March, the flowering front (Kaika Zensen) moves from Okinawa towards the north of the country, ending with the flowering of the cherry trees up in Hokkaidō during the month of May.

Japan's Meteorology Office annually predict the pattern the flowering front will follow so that everybody is able to search and find which will be the optimal locations to watch the flowering of the cherry trees. This is actually really important, as the cherry tree flower only lasts for one week, something that matches really well with the traditional Japanese spirit and ideology based upon the shortness and continuous movement of life.

Fence 11 - Gold fish.

Goldfish (“kingyo” in Japanese) is a fish that is known for his grace while swimming in an aquarium. Simply watching a beautiful, lustrous goldfish in the water will make you feel relaxed.

The established theory in Japan is that the goldfish arrived from China around 1502. At that time, goldfish were said to have been kept as a rare and strange pet of aristocrats and the wealthy. Thereafter, kingyo-sukui (goldfish scooping) became popular during the Edo period (1603 – 1868), leading to the sale of goldfish in towns. From then on until today, it has come to be a deeply familiar fish for Japanese people.

There are more than 100 varieties of goldfish, so let's find out what types of goldfish exist in Japan, including fish with high rarity value, focusing on the staple types seen in specialty shops.

Goldfish were usually put in a tub or bucket and then viewed from the top. Today, however, it has become more popular to put a goldfish in a glass bowl or aquarium and then watch it from the side. You can see them everywhere nowadays, as they are not only kept inside houses anymore, but are also put in water tanks found in eating and drinking establishments, among other places.

Goldfish are deeply familiar for Japanese people, they often appear as a motif in various artworks. For instance, you will see them in ukiyo-e (woodblock prints) made during the Edo period, as well as in the Art Aquarium that has become increasingly popular in recent years.

Fence 12 - Enso.

Ensō (circle) is one of the most common subjects of Japanese calligraphy, even though it is a symbol and not a character. You may hear it called the Circle of Enlightenment, the Enso Circle, the Infinity Circle and even the Lost Symbol of Reiki. If you actually took the meanings of the two Kanji symbols that make up the word, ensō would translate as Mutual Circle or Circle of Togetherness.

The ensō is a universal symbol of wholeness and completion; “form is void and void is form.” When viewing ensō, one can see that that form and void are interdependent and, in fact, define each other. With so many definitions available, each of us is truly left with the responsibility to select or create our own definition of ensō.

Description of Fences

フェンスの説明 / Description des obstacles

Fence 1 - Kanto Matsuri. Akita Festival.

The Kanto Matsuri (竿燈まつり, "pole lantern festival") is a Tanabata related celebration in Akita City, held every year from the 3rd to the 6th of August.

From out all the different actions which take place at the Akita festival, the most fascinating one, is how all the participants are able to keep the Kanto (long poles made out of bamboo with a paper lantern on the top) in equilibrium. These poles can reach a length of 12 metres and a weight of approximately 50 kilograms. They can have up to 46 paper lamps with lit candles inside them. Once the drums, flutes and songs start to sound ("Dokkoisho", "Dokkoisho"), each kanto is pulled up by only one person, which using different techniques makes it keep on equilibrium. Gradually, more extensions are added until the pole reaches its maximum height.

The main event of this festival are the night-time parades where different groups participate and there are approximately 250 kantos. This event takes place along Chuo Dori street in Akita.

Fence 2 - Red thread legend.

According to this myth, everyone is tied by the little finger with an invisible red thread that will lead them to another person which who they will make history.

The two people connected by this thread will have an important history, no matter the place, the time or the circumstances. The red thread can be tangled, collapsed and stretched, as surely often happens, but it can never be broken.

The ulnar artery connects the heart to the little finger. This thin vein that goes from the heart to the hand extends through the invisible world to finish its course in someone else's heart.

Unlike other legends, the Japanese is not limited to the couple, or to a single person we are destined to find. It speaks of a sort of arterial ramification that arises from a finger towards all those with whom we will make history and all those we help in one way or another.

The Red Thread myth is a way to understand our relationships with other people as a default plot where all the little stories of which, in one way or another we are part of, and how they are not casual but part of a network of red threads that are there from the beginning.

According to this legend, there is an old man who lives on the moon and leaves every night seeking among the spirits those akin to gather on earth, who have something to teach each other, and when he finds them he ties a red thread to find their way. So, our red threads end up in someone else.

Fence 3 - Japanese Seigaiha Symbol.

The seigaiha or wave is a pattern of layered concentric circles creating arches, symbolic of waves or water and representing surges of good luck. It can also signify power and resilience.

Fence 4 - Kokeshi dolls.

The Kokeshi are the traditional Japanese dolls. Originally crafted in Tokohu, a region in the North of Japan, an area most commonly known for its spas and thermal waters. Those considered to be the most traditional are called Naruko, and they are crafted in Miyagi.

Its origin dates back to the 17th century, halfway down through the Edo period.

They are handmade and crafted in wood from either the dark cherry or the lighter mizuki tree. The original kokeshi dolls were crafted following a simple design and had an elongated shape mixed with subtle colours. As years have passed, more designs have appeared, always keeping one main characteristic in common, the lack of arms and legs.

The body is usually decorated with floral motifs or with the appearance of a kimono, despite this, there are many different kinds, with different sizes and patterns.

They are considered to be both decorative and good luck amulets. As the wood with which they are carved, the Mizuki, has a high resistance to fire, they are often bought to protect the house from fires.

There are two types of kokeshi, traditional and creative or "Sosaku". The latter are relatively new, often so extraordinary in their expression that they have a high artistic value.

Fence 5ABC - Sakura.

The cherry tree flower is seen as a metaphor of life, which is considered to be beautiful but at the same ephemeral. This is why it is so admired.

Cherry trees (Sakura Zensen) start blooming during March, the flowering front (Kaika Zensen) moves from Okinawa towards the north of the country, ending with the flowering of the cherry trees up in Hokkaidō during the month of May.

Japan's Meteorology Office annually predict the pattern the flowering front will follow so that everybody is able to search and find which will be the optimal locations to watch the flowering of the cherry trees. This is actually really important, as the cherry tree flower only lasts for one week, something that matches really well with the traditional Japanese spirit and ideology based upon the shortness and continuous movement of life.

Fence 6 - FEI 100 Years.

Fence 7AB - Mascot of the Tokyo 2020 Olympics.

Japanese illustrator Ryo Taniguchi.

Manga and gamer references are seen, in representation of the Japanese contemporary visual culture and with a character design inspired by the Tokyo 2020 Olympic Games' Logo.

The pair of futuristic characters combine tradition and innovation.

The name of the Olympics mascot, Miraitowa, fuses the Japanese words for future and eternity. Someity, the Paralympics mascot, is derived from Somei-yoshino, a type of cherry blossom, cherry blossom variety "Someiyoshino" and is a play on words with the English phrase "So mighty".

The two mascot designs were selected by elementary schoolchildren across Japan, Tokyo 2020 organizing committee president Yoshiro Mori said at the ceremony:

"These mascots are your friends," you have helped to pick them, and across the country, ... five million children helped to pick this. And the name is also something we have picked together. So, this Olympics belongs to everyone."

Fence 8 - Enso.

Ensō (circle) is one of the most common subjects of Japanese calligraphy, even though it is a symbol and not a character. You may hear it called the Circle of Enlightenment, the Enso Circle, the Infinity Circle and even the Lost Symbol of Reiki. If you actually took the meanings of the two Kanji symbols that make up the word, ensō would translate as Mutual Circle or Circle of Togetherness.

The ensō is a universal symbol of wholeness and completion; “form is void and void is form.” When viewing ensō, one can see that that form and void are interdependent and, in fact, define each other. With so many definitions available, each of us is truly left with the responsibility to select or create our own definition of ensō.

Fence 9 - Gold fish.

Goldfish ("kingyo" in Japanese) is a fish that is known for his grace while swimming in an aquarium. Simply watching a beautiful, lustrous goldfish in the water will make you feel relaxed.

The established theory in Japan is that the goldfish arrived from China around 1502. At that time, goldfish were said to have been kept as a rare and strange pet of aristocrats and the wealthy. Thereafter, kingyo-sukui (goldfish scooping) became popular during the Edo period (1603 – 1868), leading to the sale of goldfish in towns. From then on until today, it has come to be a deeply familiar fish for Japanese people.

There are more than 100 varieties of goldfish, so let's find out what types of goldfish exist in Japan, including fish with high rarity value, focusing on the staple types seen in specialty shops.

Goldfish were usually put in a tub or bucket and then viewed from the top. Today, however, it has become more popular to put a goldfish in a glass bowl or aquarium and then watch it from the side. You can see them everywhere nowadays, as they are not only kept inside houses anymore, but are also put in water tanks found in eating and drinking establishments, among other places.

Goldfish are deeply familiar for Japanese people, they often appear as a motif in various artworks. For instance, you will see them in ukiyo-e (woodblock prints) made during the Edo period, as well as in the Art Aquarium that has become increasingly popular in recent years.

Statement on equine fatality at Sea Forest Cross Country course

Summary:

It is with great sadness that the Swiss horse Jet Set, ridden by Robin Godel has had to be euthanised after pulling up extremely lame on the Sea Forest Cross Country Course during Equestrian Eventing at the Olympic Games Tokyo 2020 on 1 August 2021.

Details:

Clear to this point, the 14-year-old gelding, pulled up extremely lame after jumping the final Mt Fuji water complex (fence 20) on the Sea Forest Cross Country Course today.

The horse received immediate veterinary attention at the fence and, after an initial assessment, was transferred by horse ambulance to the onsite Veterinary Clinic.

Sadly, ultrasound scans revealed an irreparable ligament rupture in the lower right limb, just above the hoof, and on humane grounds and with the agreement of the owners and athlete, the decision was taken to put the horse to sleep.

In line with the FEI Veterinary Regulations, samples have already been taken from the horse and a post mortem will be conducted.

Competition Format and Rules

競技形式および規則 / Format et règlement des compétitions

As of THU 1 JUL 2021

OLYMPIC COMPETITION FORMAT

The dressage discipline at the Tokyo 2020 Olympic Games comprises two separate events: the dressage team event and the dressage individual event.

All athletes compete in the grand prix test in which the scores of the performance count towards qualification for both the dressage team event and the dressage individual event. The 60 athletes will be split into six groups of 10.

After the grand prix test the best eight teams, including all teams tied for eighth place, will qualify for the team event final (grand prix special). The top two athletes from each group, and the six athletes with the next best scores (will qualify to the individual event final (grand prix freestyle).

Scores are not carried forward from the grand prix to either the grand prix special or grand prix freestyle.

DIFFERENCES BETWEEN THE FEI WORLD CHAMPIONSHIPS AND THE OLYMPIC GAMES

At the International Equestrian Federation (FEI) World Championships, there are the same three rounds of competition (grand prix, grand prix special and grand prix freestyle), but medals are awarded as follows:

- Team medals after the grand prix (also the qualifier for the grand prix special)
- One set of individual medals after the grand prix special (also the qualifier for the grand prix freestyle)
- A second set of individual medals after the grand prix freestyle

Teams comprise four athlete/horse combinations with a dropped score, but a maximum of three athletes per nation may compete in the grand prix freestyle.

CHANGES SINCE THE RIO 2016 OLYMPIC GAMES

Team size has changed from four to three athlete/horse combinations, with no dropped score. However, a replacement may now be made under certain circumstances.

In Rio, the individual event involved all three rounds, whereas in Tokyo the grand prix special is only part of the team event.

SPORT RULES AND PROCEDURES

Competition format

Horses must be at least eight years of age. Qualification is achieved by meeting the minimum standards of performance at nominated competitions, or competition levels, in the period beginning from 1 January 2019.

The arena must be a perfectly flat and level sand surface; 60 metres long and 20 metres wide.

The FEI grand prix test contains a series of compulsory movements. The grand prix special is a slightly longer version of the grand prix test. The grand prix freestyle (Kur) is a freestyle composition of Grand Prix movements performed with the athlete's own choreography to musical accompaniment. Seven judges award marks out of 10 for each movement and for a collective assessment.

There are two horse inspections which take place before the grand prix and before the grand prix freestyle.

Classification

After each performance and after each judge has given their collective mark and signed the sheets, these pass into the hands of the scorers. The marks are multiplied by the corresponding coefficients, where applicable, and then totalled. The total score for the classification is obtained by adding the total points on each of the judges' sheets, eventually corrected for changes by the JSP, and converted to percentage. Penalty percentage points for errors of course are deducted from the total score (per judge). All results and scores (to include artistic and technical percentage scores) must be published in percentages with numbers to three places after the decimal point.

In all team competitions the winning team is the one having the highest total points of their three best athletes, the second placed team is the one with the next highest total points and so on.

In all individual competitions the winner is the athlete having obtained the highest final percentage, the second placed athlete is the one with the next highest total and so on.

Tiebreak rules

Team, applicable for grand prix special only

In the event of a tie, the classification will be decided on the results of:

1. The best result by the lowest scoring team member in the grand prix special to break the tie
2. If still tied, the same rule will be applied to the next lowest scoring athlete
3. If still tied, the teams will share the rank

Individual

In the event of a tie in the grand prix freestyle, the classification will be decided on the results of:

1. The artistic marks in the grand prix freestyle will be used to break the tie
2. If still tied, the marks for harmony will be used to break the tie
3. If still tied, the marks for choreography will be used to break the tie

Penalties and elimination

An athlete may receive the following penalties for "Error of course" during a performance; first error is penalised with two percentage points from the total score; second error is elimination.

An athlete may also receive penalties for other faults. It is the responsibility of the judge at C to decide whether a penalty should be applied and the other judges' sheets should be marked accordingly to ensure consistency but they are not cumulative and will not result in elimination.

Disqualification rules

An athlete disqualified for unsportsmanlike behaviour or serious misconduct will receive no rank and will be listed at the bottom of the individual ranking. If the athlete is part of a team in the team event, the team will also be disqualified.

Protests/appeals

There is no appeal against the judges' marks. The NOCs may protest or appeal according to the FEI rules.

Competition Format and Rules

競技形式および規則 / Format et règlement des compétitions

As of THU 1 JUL 2021

OLYMPIC COMPETITION FORMAT

The equestrian jumping discipline at the Tokyo 2020 Olympic Games comprises two separate events: the jumping individual event and the jumping team event.

The jumping individual event comprises two competitions: individual qualifier and individual final.

The jumping team event comprises two competitions: team qualifier and team final.

The top 10 teams from the team qualifier progress to the team final. The top 30 athletes (including all athletes tied on penalties and time for 30th place) from the individual qualifier progress to the individual final.

No scores are carried forward from the qualifying competitions in either event.

The team consists of three athlete/horse combinations plus one reserve athlete/horse combination. The team score is the sum of the penalties of the three athletes on the team.

In each round, athlete/horse combinations jump a series of obstacles that may include water jumps, walls, spread obstacles, verticals, triple bars and other variations all designed to test the athlete's skill and the horse's jumping ability. Penalties are given for faults such as knocking down an obstacle, disobediences and exceeding the time allowed.

DIFFERENCES BETWEEN THE FEI WORLD CHAMPIONSHIPS AND THE OLYMPIC GAMES

At the International Equestrian Federation (FEI) World Championships, a different format is used, as follows:

- First competition (for individuals and teams): Conducted over a big table A course and judged under table C without a jump-off in the event of equality of time for first place. Each athlete's time is converted into penalties which are carried forward by teams (best three scores per team) and individuals to the second competition. No medals.
- Second competition (team final, second individual competition): Two rounds run over two days. Table A competition not against the clock. In case of teams tied on combined penalties for first place in the overall team classification after the first and second competitions (best three scores per team in the first competition and best three scores per team in each of the two rounds of the second competition) there will be a jump-off against the clock. Team medals distributed. The best placed 25 athletes qualify for the third competition and carry forward their penalties.
- Third competition (individual final): Two different successive rounds. Table A competition not against the clock. In case of a tie on penalties for first place in the overall individual classification established after the first competition and the two rounds of the second and third competitions there will be one jump-off against the clock. Individual medals distributed.

Teams comprise four athlete/horse combinations with a dropped score in each round.

CHANGES SINCE THE RIO 2016 OLYMPIC GAMES

The team size has changed from four to three athlete/horse combinations, with no drop score. Once the teams have been declared one substitution of combination per team is permitted but only during the period between the end of the first team competition and two hours before the start of the team final.

The team and individual events are now separate, with a qualifier and final for each event.

SPORT RULES AND PROCEDURES

Competition method

Horses must be at least nine years of age. Qualification is achieved by meeting minimum standards of performance at nominated competitions in the period beginning from 1 January 2019 until 21 June 2021.

A maximum of three athletes/horses per nation, selected from among those entered, may compete per competition. The Organising Committee will organise a training session before the competition for the athletes of the jumping competitions in the main arena.

For each competition the course of 12 to 14 or 15 obstacles is laid out in an enclosed arena. Various factors are tested in the jumping discipline (speed, precision, power, etc.) but the object is always the same: to jump the entire course within the time allowed without making a mistake - a clear round. If an obstacle is knocked down or in case of a refusal, "faults" are accumulated, and a fall of either horse or athlete results in elimination.

Tiebreak rules

Team and individual

If there is a tie on penalties for a gold medal a jump-off will take place.

If there is a tie on penalties for a silver or bronze medal, the times of the athletes will be used to break the tie. A jump-off will only take place if there is a tie on penalties and time.

Disqualification rules

If an athlete/horse combination, taking part in the individual event, is disqualified for unsportsmanlike behaviour or serious misconduct (DQB) they will receive no rank and will be listed at the bottom of the individual ranking. If an athlete/horse combination, taking part in the team event, is disqualified for unsportsmanlike behaviour or serious misconduct (DQB), the entire team in question is disqualified and may take no further part in the competition.

Protests/appeals

The NOCs may protest or appeal according to the FEI rules.

Description of Fences

フェンスの説明 / Description des obstacles

Fence 1 - Logo of the Tokyo 2020 Olympics.

XXXII Olympic Games which will take place in Tokyo (Japan)
Harmonized Chequered Emblem, the logo for the next Olympic Games is a proposal presented by the Japanese designer Asao Tokoro. Composed of three varieties of rectangular shapes, the design represents different countries, cultures and ways of thinking. It incorporates the message of “unity in diversity”. It also expresses that the Olympic and Paralympic Games seek to promote diversity as a platform to connect the world

Fence 2 - Himeji Castle.

Himeji-jo is the finest surviving example of early 17th-century Japanese castle architecture. It is located in Himeji City, in the Hyogo Prefecture, an area that has been an important transportation hub in West Japan since ancient times.

The castle has been designated a National Treasure and UNESCO World Heritage Site in 1993. The castle property, situated on a hill summit in the central part of the Harima Plain, covers 107 hectares and comprises eighty-two buildings. It is centred on the Tenshu-gun, a complex made up of the donjon, keeps and connecting structures which are part of a highly developed system of defence and ingenious protection devices dating from the beginning of the Shogun period. The castle worked continuously as the centre of a feudal domain for almost three centuries, until 1868 when the Shogun fell, and a new national government was created.

The principal complex of these structures is a masterpiece of construction in wood, combining function with aesthetic appeal.

(Unesco)

Fence 3 - Shinkansen high speed train.

Shinkansen – High Speed Train (Dangan Ressha)

Before trains and railway systems arrived in Japan, one of the main routes in Japan was the Tokaido Route, which connects Kyoto (Capital of the Empire) and Osaka with Edo (a.k.a. Tokyo nowadays). As a tribute to the Olympic Games celebrated in 1964, Japan developed something new, the Sinkansen or Bullet Train.

For the year 2020, a new train, with a more dynamic design, with higher performance which will be known as Shinkansen Supreme, which will reduce the sound emitted when entering tunnels, as well as the resistance exerted against wind. As previous bullet trains, its first trip will complete the route Tokaido-Shinkansen.

Fence 4 - Good luck charm. Daruma.

Daruma (達磨) “Japanese amulet”

Ritual Ceremony: Daruma Kuyo (だるま供養)

Shorinzan Daruma Temple in Takasaki

Every year, during the month of January (6th & 7th) more than 400.000 Japanese reach the temple in search of a daruma for the incoming year. The Daruma is considered a motivational amulet. It is considered to be motivational because it motivates us and gives us strength so that we can achieve what we propose. The daruma is a representation of the objective that we have self-imposed, a way to remember, a motivation, so that we do not feel weak during the process.

Fall seven times, come back eight.

Japanese proverb

Once we've set our objective, we must colour in one of the eyes.

During the process, we must work hard in order to reach our objective.

Once we reach our objective, we will colour in the other eye symbolizing our thankfulness and satisfaction.

Fence 5abc - Japanese calligraphy.

Shodo 書道, "The trail of Japanese writing", the art of Japanese calligraphy.

Japanese inherited their calligraphy tradition from a millenary Chinese tradition which was introduced by Japanese Buddhist monks. Nowadays Japanese calligraphy is considered an art, and it is practiced making use of traditional tools which have been inherited from the Chinese tradition:

Paint brush made out of bamboo or fude (筆)

Inkwell or suzuri (硯): it generally has a squared shape. This is where ink is placed when writing.

Ink bar or sumi (墨): It is still used in temples whilst in Japanese schools they now use Chinese Inkballs.

Rice paper.

Paperweight or bunchin (文鎮): used to keep the page from moving.

6 - Samurais and katanas.

Ancient Japanese soldiers

Samurais were an elite military unit which controlled the country over centuries. Basic qualities of these soldiers consisted in loyalty, honour, audacity... Their life was really disciplined, and they were always in death-risk.

The katana, daito in Japanese was considered as the samurai's soul.

The first samurai armours were made out of iron sheets joined together by leather straps.

Fence 7 - Shibuya cross. Tokyo.

Rumours speak of it as the busiest intersection in the world (and definitely in Japan), Shibuya Crossing is like a giant beating heart, sending people in all directions with every pulsing light change. Hundreds of people – and at peak times reaching the estimated quantity of 3000 people – cross at a time, coming from all directions at once, yet still managing to dodge each other with a practiced, nonchalant agility.

It is located in Tokyo, the district that shares name with the city where we can find it, a commercial and leisure district with great popularity.

Fence 8 - Farmhouses of Shirakawa.

Historical village of Shirakawago (白川郷)
Shogawa Valley

Shirakawago and Gokayama (五箇山), both neighbour villages, were declared by the UNESCO in 1995 as Patrimony of Humanity. Both are surrounded by mountains and are well known for their typical houses which were built following the gassho-zukuri style (合掌造り), which consists of houses with a triangular rooftop with a high inclination degree made out of hay so that it can handle the heavy weight that the snow can exert upon it.

Tourists find extremely attractive the wintry landscape that we can find there as well as, the different scenes we can find there during Autumn.

Fence 9 - Port of Tokyo Tunnel (Tōkyō-kō Tunnel). Bayshore Route.

This immersed-tube tunnel beneath Tokyo Port was completed in 1976. It forms a crucial link in the Tokyo Port Metropolitan Expressway loop road that serves the Odaiba and Tokyo Bay waterfront areas.

It is located on the Bayshore Route, the Tokyo metropolitan area expressway, which joins the prefectures of Kanagawa, Tokyo and Chiba.

It joins the many artificial islands which compose Tokyo Bay throughout underwater bridges and tunnels.

This route, along with the Aqua-line located in Tokyo Bay and the Ken-Ō Expressway, forms an outer ring around the metropolis (Tokyo), with a radius of 40-60 km and a length of about 300 km.

Fence 10 - Gold repaired broken pottery.

Kintsugi, “the golden splice” The beauty of the scars of life.

The “kintsugi” is a centenary-old technique used in Japan which dates of the second half of the 15th century. This technique gives a new life to the fragments of broken ceramics by joining them with a special enamel sprinkled with gold, silver or platinum, turning the different fractures into golden and visible scars. This turns its aesthetic essence into a more beautiful object than it was originally.

It evokes the value of imperfection by making emphasis on its scars instead of concealing the lines of breakage, and by not hiding them, they become unique and win in beauty.

It is one possible kind of life philosophy: when we are facing adversities and our errors, we must know how to recover, how to see the beauty in this imperfection (Japanese philosophy of Wabi-Sabi). We must also know how to lament only when we waste opportunities (the Mottainai sentiment), and most importantly, we must be able to accept changes.

Fence 11 - Spanish Flamenco.

Flamenco is a perfect representation of the fusion of Japanese and Spanish culture. Out from all the countries throughout the world, Japan is the one where they best understand Spanish Flamenco. Both cultures share some similarities, and Flamenco is the best way to represent this idea. Flamenco has been conceived not to be understood, but to be felt, it is a really expressive art.

This jump is in some way, a tribute to the Course Designer Team's country.

Fence 12 - Japanese hairpins and bow.

The Kanzashi (簪) are hair ornaments used in traditional Japanese hairstyles.

They are fabricated from a wide range of materials such as lacquered wood, gold- and silver-plated metal, tortoiseshell and silk, and recently, plastic. In fact, early bakelite kanzashi are highly valued as collectibles.

There are several basic kanzashi styles that traditionally followed more complex hana (flower) and seasonal arrangements. Today these arrangements are only followed by maiko.

Kanzashi were first used in Japan during the Jōmon period. During that time, a single thin rod or stick was considered to have mystical powers which could ward off evil spirits, so people would wear them in their hair.

It came into wide use during the Edo period, when hairstyles became larger and more complicated, it required using a larger number of ornaments. Artisans began to produce more finely crafted products, including some hair ornaments that could be used as defensive weapons. During the latter part of the Edo period, the craftsmanship of kanzashi reached a high point, with many styles and designs being created.

Fence 13ab - Hanafuda playing cards.

Hanafuda (花札), "Flower Cards".

Hanafuda is a Karuta deck of cards which was invented halfway through the XVI century. Card games were forbidden throughout all Japan, Japanese people forced themselves to search for an alternative and they came out with Hanafuda, a card game where the card numbers were now represented by the twelve months of the year. Reaching the end of the XVIII century cards were legalized again and Fusajiro Yamamuchi, a card-game lover, was so delighted that he opened a company whose objective was to sell high-class cards, the company's name was Nintendo.

Fence 14 - Japanese food.

Japanese food as a cultural reflect.

The Japanese understand gastronomy as an art. When cooking they always seek the harmony of all the ingredients and the presentation of these. Making sushi is a real spectacle in itself. Aesthetics always play an important role as they are a vital part when we are in search of this harmony. We begin to enjoy food through the sense of sight.

Occasionally, on informal occasions soup and rice are eaten with some fish, shellfish and meat. When we prepare meals to be carried in the typical Bento boxes, it is common to include small portions of different types of food separated in different compartments.

On more formal occasions, those "rules" that we follow when: presenting our dishes, choosing the food and the cooking of these; become much more stringent.

One of the best-known set of rules is to use 5 colours: green, yellow, red, white and black; 5 flavours: sweet, salty, sour, hot & spicy and acid; and 5 kinds of cooking: raw, cooked, steamed, grilled/griddled and fried.

Fence 1 – The Great Wave off Kanagawa. Hokusai.

Author: (Katsushika Hokusai)

Original Title: (Kanagawa-oki nami ura)

Year: 1829 – 1832

Base/stand: Colour-engraved upon a wooden block.
Japanese ukiyo-e master.

The Great Wave is the most recognized piece by Japanese painter Katsushika Hokusai, who specializes in ukiyo-e. Published between 1830 and 1833 during the Edo period, it forms part of the collection “Thirty-six views of Mount Fuji”, even though Mount Fuji is the smallest element.

The wave references the relentless force of nature, the sea, and the importance this event has in Japan’s economy and its cultural development, given the country is formed by 4 islands.

Fence 2 – Sakura

The cherry tree flower is seen as a metaphor of life, which is considered to be beautiful but at the same ephemeral. This is why it is so admired.

Cherry trees (Sakura Zensen) start blooming during March, the flowering front (Kaika Zensen) moves from Okinawa towards the north of the country, ending with the flowering of the cherry trees up in Hokkaidō during the month of May. Japan's Meteorology Office annually predict the pattern the flowering front will follow so that everybody is able to search and find which will be the optimal locations to watch the flowering of the cherry trees. This is actually really important, as the cherry tree flower only lasts for one week, something that matches really well with the traditional Japanese spirit and ideology based upon the shortness and continuous movement of life.

Fence 3ab – Kokeshi Dolls

The Kokeshi are the traditional Japanese dolls. Originally crafted in Tokohu, a region in the North of Japan, an area most commonly known for its spas and thermal waters. Those considered to be the most traditional are called Naruko, and they are crafted in Miyagi.

Its origin dates back to the 17th century, halfway down through the Edo period.

They are handmade and crafted in wood from either the dark cherry or the lighter mizuki tree. The original kokeshi dolls were crafted following a simple design and had an elongated shape mixed with subtle colours. As years have passed, more designs have appeared, always keeping one main characteristic in common, the lack of arms and legs. The body is usually decorated with floral motifs or with the appearance of a kimono, despite this, there are many different kinds, with different sizes and patterns.

They are considered to be both decorative and good luck amulets. As the wood with which they are carved, the Mizuki, has a high resistance to fire, they are often bought to protect the house from fires.

There are two types of kokeshi, traditional and creative or "Sosaku". The latter are relatively new, often so extraordinary in their expression that they have a high artistic value.

Fence 4 – Mascot of the Tokyo 2020 Olympics

Japanese illustrator Ryo Taniguchi.

Manga and gamer references are seen, in representation of the Japanese contemporary visual culture and with a character design inspired by the Tokyo 2020 Olympic Games' Logo.

The pair of futuristic characters combine tradition and innovation.

The name of the Olympics mascot, Miraitowa, fuses the Japanese words for future and eternity. Someity, the Paralympics mascot, is derived from Somei-yoshino, a type of cherry blossom, cherry blossom variety "Someiyoshino" and is a play on words with the English phrase "So mighty".

The two mascot designs were selected by elementary schoolchildren across Japan, Tokyo 2020 organizing committee president Yoshiro Mori said at the ceremony:

"These mascots are your friends," you have helped to pick them, and across the country, ... five million children helped to pick this. And the name is also something we have picked together. So, this Olympics belongs to everyone."

Fence 5 – Tanabata Festival. Miyagi

As for the Tanabata festival, the three most important celebrations are considered to be: Sendai Tanabata Matsuri, which takes place at the Miyagi prefecture; Shōhan Hiratsuka Tanabata Matsuri, which takes place at the Kanagawa prefecture and lastly, the Anjō Tanabata Matsuri, which takes place at the Aichi prefecture.

Tanabata is a national holiday in Japan, it's considered one of their five traditional festivals, or gosekku (a fusion of Chinese and Japanese culture).

Every year, on the seventh day of the seventh month of the lunar calendar (for some regions it is the 7th of July, for others, the 7th of August), Japanese people celebrate the annual encounter between Orihime (Vega) also known as the Weaver Girl and the mother of silk farming; and Hikoboshi (Altair) also known as the Cow Herder Star and the farmers' messenger. The tradition states that once both meet they set up on a trip where they travel through the Milky Way to renew their love vows.

Sendai's (Miyagi) celebration is one of the most popular, and it is celebrated during the month of August. In Japan, this trip is commemorated by decorating trees with paper strips where people write their wishes, they are also known as tanzaku bands. Once written they are usually strapped up on bamboo branches, due to their stiffness which keeps them up straight without bending. According to the tradition, this helps the branches' whisper reach the sky, and with it, everybody's dreams.

(The Akita festival is one of the celebrations we may see during Tanabata).

Fence 6abc – Nature, Landscape, and Animals

Outside of mythology, certain animals are considered national treasures of Japanese culture.

- The Japanese deer were considered sacred animals because of their relationship with gods of the Shinto pantheon. The two most important Japanese deer colonies are found today in the parks of Nara and on the island of Miyajima, next to Hiroshima.
- El Japanese Macaque, (Nihonzaru), is native to Japan and lives in the natural park of Nagano, particularly in the Jigokudani Yaen Koen. This forest full of springs of Oonsen thermal waters (温泉おんせん) is the primate that lives further north than any other non-human primate, supports the strong Japanese winters.
- The crane, bird venerated throughout all of Japan, stands out for its elegance, longevity and the aura of spirituality that surrounds it. Its agility and his strong reaction to the danger have been inspiration for hundreds of years in the martial arts. We can find it distributed along the island of Hokkaido, located in the north of Japan.

Fence 7 – The Nikko Mausoleum. Tochigi

The Shrines and Temples of Nikko form a single complex composed of one hundred three religious' buildings within two Shinto shrines (The Tōshōgū and The Futarasan-jinja) and one Buddhist temple (The Rinnō-ji) located in an outstanding natural setting. The inscribed property is located inside the Tochigi Prefecture, in the northern part of Japan's Kanto region. The mausoleum has been designated a National Treasure and UNESCO World Heritage Site in 1993.

These buildings were constructed in the 17th century on the mountain slopes so as to create different visual effects. Within the ensemble Nikkō Toshō-gū there is a Shinto shrine, which was built by Tokugawa Iyeyasu's grandson so that his spirit could rest.

The sanctuary is accessed through a stone torii. After leaving the five-storey pagoda behind, we can access to the enclosure. Through the luxurious Yomeimon gate we can reach the Karamon gate behind which, we can find the Haiden prayer hall and the main hall Honden, the sanctuary's neuralgic centre. To the right of the main hall, we find the Sakashitamon door, where you will find the wood carving of the Nemurineko or 'sleeping cat'.

Fence 8 – Kimonos

The Japanese kimono is one of the world's instantly recognizable traditional garments. The word kimono literally means "clothing", and up until the mid 19th century it was the form of dress worn by everyone in Japan. This began to change slowly with the import of suits, dresses and other western fashions.

Thanks to the popularity of ukiyo-e woodblock prints in the West at the beginning of the past century, the kimono-clad maiden became one of the quintessential images of Japan. Dressing up in the kimono and other accoutrements of the geisha or maiko is still one of the more popular activities for visiting tourists.

There are different types of kimono for different occasions and seasons, including those worn by men. Other than those worn daily by some older people or performers of traditional arts, kimono is a much less common sight these days but are still widely worn on special occasions such as weddings and graduation ceremonies.

Lined kimono, is traditionally made out of silk but sometimes wool or synthetic fabrics, are worn during the cooler months.

Light, cotton yukata is worn by men and women during the summer months and after bathing at onsen (hot spring resorts) and ryokan (traditional inns). Often, they are worn with geta, informal wooden footwear.

Fence 9 – Stone Bridge, Shikinaen Garden. Ryukyu Islands.

Shikinaen (識名園) was constructed in the end of the 18th century as the second residence for the Ryukyu kings. Its features are beautiful, relatively simple, wooden palace buildings in Okinawan style, red tile roofs and a spacious Japanese style landscape garden with a central pond. While the garden is designed in a style seen elsewhere in Japan, the architecture and flora give Shikinaen a uniquely Okinawan flavour

In 2000, Shikinaen was among those which were added to the list of UNESCO World Heritage Sites under the title Gusuku Sites and Related Properties of the Kingdom of Ryukyu.

The garden can be viewed from a 300-metre circular path, which leads through a forested area before reaching the pond. Two stone bridges connect to a small islet in the middle of the water and allow visitors to cross from one side of the pond to the other. A small hexagonal pavilion stands on a second islet. Artificial hills surround the pond and give the garden more vantage points and character.

Fence 10 – Shinkyo Bridge

Nikko Bridge Shinkyo (神橋, Shinkyō) is located at the entrance before reaching the temple and shrines area of Nikko, surrounded by a spectacular nature.

It belongs to the Futarasan Shrine (二荒山神社) is a beautiful and ancient shrine that can be found in Nikko. This bridge is listed as one of the three most beautiful bridges in Japan next to the Kintaikyo Bridge of Iwakuni and the Saruhashi of Yamanashi prefecture.

The Shinkyo bridge that can be seen at present was built in the year 1636 but until 1973 was not open to the public.

Fence 11 – Hachiko

Hachikō's statue, Shibuya (Tokyo)

Since 1924, Hidesaburo Ueno, professor at the University of Tokyo, and his puppy Akita, breed of the ancient guardians of the Emperors, became inseparable. Every day they walked to the Shibuya train station located in the centre of Tokyo where the dog waited for him until his return so that they could walk their way back home together. This routine lasted 2 years, until Ueno died of a cerebral haemorrhage while he was in class.

His wife donated Hachi to a new family, but he continued to wait for his former owner at the train station for 10 years. They began to publish Hachi's stories in local newspapers, and in 1934 a statue was erected in front of the Shibuya train station, with Hachi as the main guest at its inauguration.

A year later, in 1935, Hachiko died at the station, and was buried next to his owner at the Aoyama Cemetery in Tokyo.

This story was taken to the cinema in 1987 by the Japanese filmmaker Seijiro Kojama; the film, in black and white, is titled Hachiko Monogatari (The story of Hachiko). In 2009 a remake was made in the United States directed by Lasse Hallström under the title "Hachi: A Dog's Tale".

Fence 12ab – Japanese Fan

The Japanese fan (ôgi, generic; sensu, 扇子, folding)

Since its arrival during the 6th century within the upper classes of the imperial court, and with the sole objective of keeping the heat away, the Japanese fan has been considered really important inside Japanese culture since then. This kind of fan was also the instrument used by the Samurai to send signals when they were on the battlefield; it was also used by judges, kabuki actors, dancers, geishas...

The fan itself is a symbol of prosperity as it extends when we open it. For the Japanese, the fan starts from a single point, the Clavillo, considered our birth, and the strips of wood, which extend in various directions, are in Japan the different roads life can take.

Fence 13 – Japanese Calligraphy

Shodo 書道, "The trail of Japanese writing", the art of Japanese calligraphy.

Japanese inherited their calligraphy tradition from a millenary Chinese tradition which was introduced by Japanese Buddhist monks. Nowadays Japanese calligraphy is considered an art, and it is practiced making use of traditional tools which have been inherited from the Chinese tradition:

Paint brush made out of bamboo or fude (筆)

Inkwell or suzuri (硯): it generally has a squared shape. This is where ink is placed when writing.

Ink bar or sumi (墨): It is still used in temples whilst in Japanese schools they now use Chinese Inkballs.

Rice paper.

Paperweight or bunchin (文鎮): used to keep the page from moving.

Fence 2 – Tokyo Skyline

Tōkyō Sukai Tsurī o 東京スカイツリ
Sumida District, Tokyo

The new Tokyo skyline has been eclipsed by the Sky Tree, the new communications tower in Tokyo, which is also the highest structure in all of Japan at 634 metres, and the highest communications tower in the world.

The design of the superstructure is based on the following three concepts:

- . Fusion of futuristic design and traditional beauty of Japan,
- . Catalyst for revitalization of the city,
- . Contribution to disaster prevention "Safety and Security".

... combining a futuristic and innovating design with the traditional Japanese beauty, catalysing a revival of this part of the city and resistant to different natural disasters. The tower even resisted the 2011 earthquake that occurred in Tahoku, despite not being finished and its great height.

Fence 3 – Gold Repaired Broken Pottery

Kintsugi, “the golden splice” The beauty of the scars of life.

The “kintsugi” is a centenary-old technique used in Japan which dates of the second half of the 15th century. This technique gives a new life to the fragments of broken ceramics by joining them with a special enamel sprinkled with gold, silver or platinum, turning the different fractures into golden and visible scars. This turns its aesthetic essence into a more beautiful object than it was originally.

It evokes the value of imperfection by making emphasis on its scars instead of concealing the lines of breakage, and by not hiding them, they become unique and win in beauty.

It is one possible kind of life philosophy: when we are facing adversities and our errors, we must know how to recover, how to see the beauty in this imperfection (Japanese philosophy of Wabi-Sabi). We must also know how to lament only when we waste opportunities (the Mottainai sentiment), and most importantly, we must be able to accept changes.

Fence 4abc – Tanabata Festival. Miyagi

As for the Tanabata festival, the three most important celebrations are considered to be: Sendai Tanabata Matsuri, which takes place at the Miyagi prefecture; Shōhan Hiratsuka Tanabata Matsuri, which takes place at the Kanagawa prefecture and lastly, the Anjō Tanabata Matsuri, which takes place at the Aichi prefecture.

Tanabata is a national holiday in Japan, it's considered one of their five traditional festivals, or gosekku (a fusion of Chinese and Japanese culture).

Every year, on the seventh day of the seventh month of the lunar calendar (for some regions it is the 7th of July, for others, the 7th of August), Japanese people celebrate the annual encounter between Orihime (Vega) also known as the Weaver Girl and the mother of silk farming; and Hikoboshi (Altair) also known as the Cow Herder Star and the farmers' messenger. The tradition states that once both meet they set up on a trip where they travel through the Milky Way to renew their love vows.

Sendai's (Miyagi) celebration is one of the most popular, and it is celebrated during the month of August. In Japan, this trip is commemorated by decorating trees with paper strips where people write their wishes, they are also known as tanzaku bands. Once written they are usually strapped up on bamboo branches, due to their stiffness which keeps them up straight without bending. According to the tradition, this helps the branches' whisper reach the sky, and with it, everybody's dreams.

(The Akita festival is one of the celebrations we may see during Tanabata).

Fence 5 – Logo of the Tokyo 2020 Olympics

XXXII Olympic Games which will take place in Tokyo (Japan)

Harmonized Chequered Emblem, the logo for the next Olympic Games is a proposal presented by the Japanese designer Asao Tokoro. Composed of three varieties of rectangular shapes, the design represents different countries, cultures and ways of thinking. It incorporates the message of “unity in diversity”. It also expresses that the Olympic and Paralympic Games seek to promote diversity as a platform to connect the world.

Fence 6 – Gold Fish

Goldfish (“kingyo” in Japanese) is a fish that is known for his grace while swimming in an aquarium. Simply watching a beautiful, lustrous goldfish in the water will make you feel relaxed.

The established theory in Japan is that the goldfish arrived from China around 1502. At that time, goldfish were said to have been kept as a rare and strange pet of aristocrats and the wealthy. Thereafter, kingyo-sukui (goldfish scooping) became popular during the Edo period (1603 – 1868), leading to the sale of goldfish in towns. From then on until today, it has come to be a deeply familiar fish for Japanese people.

There are more than 100 varieties of goldfish, so let's find out what types of goldfish exist in Japan, including fish with high rarity value, focusing on the staple types seen in specialty shops.

Goldfish were usually put in a tub or bucket and then viewed from the top. Today, however, it has become more popular to put a goldfish in a glass bowl or aquarium and then watch it from the side. You can see them everywhere nowadays, as they are not only kept inside houses anymore, but are also put in water tanks found in eating and drinking establishments, among other places.

Goldfish are deeply familiar for Japanese people, they often appear as a motif in various artworks. For instance, you will see them in ukiyo-e (woodblock prints) made during the Edo period, as well as in the Art Aquarium that has become increasingly popular in recent years.

Fence 7 – Nature, Landscape, and Animals. The Crane.

Outside of mythology, certain animals are considered national treasures of Japanese culture.

The crane, bird venerated throughout all of Japan, stands out for its elegance, longevity and the aura of spirituality that surrounds it. Its agility and his strong reaction to the danger have been inspiration for hundreds of years in the martial arts. We can find it distributed along the island of Hokkaido, located in the north of Japan.

Fence 8 – Equestrian Pictograms of the Olympics. Water Jump.

The appearance of the pictograms, as an iconic language, informative and systematic, is a phenomenon directly related to the history of the Olympic Games. The meeting of different languages and cultures, which is typical of the Olympic phenomenon, has been a stimulus for the development of visual languages that seek universal comprehension. The pictograms find their first applications in the organization of the Olympic Games, before becoming an indispensable language in large public spaces around the world. The first systematic design of pictograms, both of sports and of services was the one carried out for Tokyo '64, with Masasa Katsumie, as artistic director, and Yoshio Yamashita as graphic realizer. It is considered as the first "dictionary" that allows the creation of a visual system of signs, of a language, of universal comprehension.

Sports' pictograms consist then of the composition of elements of the human body and, in some cases, of elements representative of the instruments of the play and of the scenario, to represent the movement or the position which is estimated most representative of each sport.

Fence 9 – Kimonos

The Japanese kimono is one of the world's instantly recognizable traditional garments. The word kimono literally means "clothing", and up until the mid 19th century it was the form of dress worn by everyone in Japan. This began to change slowly with the import of suits, dresses and other western fashions.

Thanks to the popularity of ukiyo-e woodblock prints in the West at the beginning of the past century, the kimono-clad maiden became one of the quintessential images of Japan. Dressing up in the kimono and other accoutrements of the geisha or maiko is still one of the more popular activities for visiting tourists.

There are different types of kimono for different occasions and seasons, including those worn by men. Other than those worn daily by some older people or performers of traditional arts, kimono is a much less common sight these days but are still widely worn on special occasions such as weddings and graduation ceremonies.

Lined kimono, is traditionally made out of silk but sometimes wool or synthetic fabrics, are worn during the cooler months. Light, cotton yukata is worn by men and women during the summer months and after bathing at onsen (hot spring resorts) and ryokan (traditional inns). Often, they are worn with geta, informal wooden footwear.

Fence 10 – Sumo Tower and Wrestler (rikishi)

Sumo fighting, god fighting.

Sumo fighting is Japan's national sport. It consists in a millenary way of fighting (it was invented over 1.300 years ago). The objective is for the fighters to throw their opponent either out of the dohyo or ring, or against the floor in order to win.

Fence 11 – Senbazuru (Origami)

The word Origami (折り紙) stems from the Japanese terms Oru (折り, which stands for folding) and Kami (紙, which means paper).

In Japanese culture Origami is considered a fundamental educational art, and has a great symbolic and cultural weight, as seen in the legend of the One Thousand Origami Cranes. Japanese temples and monuments are covered in colourful paper cranes held together by strings which is known as Senbazuru (千羽鶴).

According to the tale, if you desire something with great passion and craft 1.000 paper cranes, the gods will grant your wish.

Sadako Sasaki resided in Hiroshima in 1945, 1.5 kilometres away from where the bomb was dropped. She developed Leukaemia and not diagnosed until 10 years after.

She wished to cure herself from the disease and attempted to craft 1.000 origami cranes, but only managed to make 664. Her friends continued with the task and completed the 1.000 cranes hoping for no more wars.

The children of Hiroshima placed a statue in her name, in which she can be seen holding a crane. The statue is located in the Hiroshima Peace Memorial Park, where every 6th of August, Japan's Peace Day, thousands of cranes arrive at Hiroshima from all over the world with hope that this peace message is transmitted all over the world.

Fence 12 – The Nikko Mausoleum. Tochigi.

The Shrines and Temples of Nikko form a single complex composed of one hundred three religious' buildings within two Shinto shrines (The Tōshōgū and The Futarasan-jinja) and one Buddhist temple (The Rinnō-ji) located in an outstanding natural setting. The inscribed property is located inside the Tochigi Prefecture, in the northern part of Japan's Kanto region. The mausoleum has been designated a National Treasure and UNESCO World Heritage Site in 1993.

Fence 13ab – Japanese Hairpins and Bow

The Kanzashi (簪) are hair ornaments used in traditional Japanese hairstyles.

They are fabricated from a wide range of materials such as lacquered wood, gold- and silver-plated metal, tortoiseshell and silk, and recently, plastic. In fact, early bakelite kanzashi are highly valued as collectibles.

There are several basic kanzashi styles that traditionally followed more complex hana (flower) and seasonal arrangements. Today these arrangements are only followed by maiko.

Kanzashi were first used in Japan during the Jōmon period. During that time, a single thin rod or stick was considered to have mystical powers which could ward off evil spirits, so people would wear them in their hair.

It came into wide use during the Edo period, when hairstyles became larger and more complicated, it required using a larger number of ornaments. Artisans began to produce more finely crafted products, including some hair ornaments that could be used as defensive weapons. During the latter part of the Edo period, the craftsmanship of kanzashi reached a high point, with many styles and designs being created.

Fence 14 – Musical Instruments

In Japan there is a wide variety of traditional music and instruments. The Taiko or "Big Japanese Drum", played with wooden drumsticks called Bachi, is the most popular.

In the religious sense in Shinto shrines and Buddhist temples, they are traditionally used as a means of transmission and meditation, to raise prayers and communicate with the gods. It is also one of the main characters in popular culture, in the different genres of traditional Japanese music, like the Gagaku and the Ohayashi, and we also see them in the different stage plays which are played following the Kabuki and nō theatres.

The drum, deeply rooted within the rural community, allowed to scare off evil spirits and pests that would damage the crops. In the war they were used to intimidate the opponents, raise the morale of the troops and order the army on the battlefield.

In cities which were developed around the castle of a feudal lord, daimyō, it was used to mark the hours, and all the localities counted at least with a master craftsman dedicated to the elaboration of these instruments.

Description of Fences

フェンスの説明 / Description des obstacles

Fence 1 - FEI 100 YEARS

Fence 2 - Hachiko.

Hachikō's statue, Shibuya (Tokyo)

Since 1924, Hidesaburo Ueno, professor at the University of Tokyo, and his puppy Akita, breed of the ancient guardians of the Emperors, became inseparable. Every day they walked to the Shibuya train station located in the centre of Tokyo where the dog waited for him until his return so that they could walk their way back home together. This routine lasted 2 years, until Ueno died of a cerebral haemorrhage while he was in class.

His wife donated Hachi to a new family, but he continued to wait for his former owner at the train station for 10 years. They began to publish Hachi's stories in local newspapers, and in 1934 a statue was erected in front of the Shibuya train station, with Hachi as the main guest at its inauguration.

A year later, in 1935, Hachiko died at the station, and was buried next to his owner at the Aoyama Cemetery in Tokyo.

This story was taken to the cinema in 1987 by the Japanese filmmaker Seijiro Kojama; the film, in black and white, is titled Hachiko Monogatari (The story of Hachiko). In 2009 a remake was made in the United States directed by Lasse Hallström under the title "Hachi: A Dog's Tale".

Fence 3 - Samurais and katanas.

Ancient Japanese soldiers

Samurais were an elite military unit which controlled the country over centuries. Basic qualities of these soldiers consisted in loyalty, honour, audacity... Their life was really disciplined, and they were always in death-risk.

The katana, daito in Japanese was considered as the samurai's soul.

The first samurai armours were made out of iron sheets joined together by leather straps.

Fence 4 - Nihonbashi Bridge. Tokyo

Nihonbashi, (literally: Japanese bridge), is the name of a business neighbourhood which belongs to the district of Chuō in Tokyo (Japan). IN this neighbourhood we can find the famous bridge that bears same name.

It is considered as one of the most important level steps of the Tōkkaidō of the Edo period. It was the most important commercial point in the country as it was the starting point of five of the busiest routes of the time.

The bridge has been destroyed by earthquakes and wars on several occasions. At present, the Nihonbashi Bridge is crossed by an elevated expressway.

The bridge is said to have been built in 1603 under the order of Tokugawa Ieyasu. The next year, the starting point of Gokaido, or five major roads, was made and became the symbol of the prosperous city of Edo, the centre of Japan.

The current twin arch bridge made of stone was completed in 1911. The kirin statue under the bridge light in the centre of the bridge depicts the prosperity of the city of Tokyo when it was made, and the shishi statues at the four corners depict protection. The Nihonbashi was designated as an Important Cultural Property of Japan.

Fence 5 - Japanese food.

Japanese food as a cultural reflect.

The Japanese understand gastronomy as an art. When cooking they always seek the harmony of all the ingredients and the presentation of these. Making sushi is a real spectacle in itself. Aesthetics always play an important role as they are a vital part when we are in search of this harmony. We begin to enjoy food through the sense of sight.

Occasionally, on informal occasions soup and rice are eaten with some fish, shellfish and meat. When we prepare meals to be carried in the typical Bento boxes, it is common to include small portions of different types of food separated in different compartments.

On more formal occasions, those "rules" that we follow when: presenting our dishes, choosing the food and the cooking of these; become much more stringent.

One of the best-known set of rules is to use 5 colours: green, yellow, red, white and black; 5 flavours: sweet, salty, sour, hot & spicy and acid; and 5 kinds of cooking: raw, cooked, steamed, grilled/griddled and fried.

Fence 6ab - Shinkyo bridge.

The Nikko mausoleum.

Nikko Bridge Shinkyo (神橋, Shinkyō) is located at the entrance before reaching the temple and shrines area of Nikko, surrounded by a spectacular nature.

It belongs to the Futarasan Shrine (二荒山神社) is a beautiful and ancient shrine that can be found in Nikko. This bridge is listed as one of the three most beautiful bridges in Japan next to the Kintaikyo Bridge of Iwakuni and the Saruhashi of Yamanashi prefecture.

The Shinkyo bridge that can be seen at present was built in the year 1636 but until 1973 was not open to the public.

Fence 7 - Himeji Castle.

Himeji-jo is the finest surviving example of early 17th-century Japanese castle architecture. It is located in Himeji City, in the Hyogo Prefecture, an area that has been an important transportation hub in West Japan since ancient times.

The castle has been designated a National Treasure and UNESCO World Heritage Site in 1993. The castle property, situated on a hill summit in the central part of the Harima Plain, covers 107 hectares and comprises eighty-two buildings. It is centred on the Tenshu-gun, a complex made up of the donjon, keeps and connecting structures which are part of a highly developed system of defence and ingenious protection devices dating from the beginning of the Shogun period. The castle worked continuously as the centre of a feudal domain for almost three centuries, until 1868 when the Shogun fell, and a new national government was created.

The principal complex of these structures is a masterpiece of construction in wood, combining function with aesthetic appeal.

Fence 8abc - Traditional Japanese Theatre. Kabuki.

Kabuki (歌舞伎) Japanese traditional theatre

Noh and Kabuki are old theatre forms that are still performed today and are part of the UNESCO Intangible Cultural Heritage of Humanity.

Kabuki is a Japanese theatrical genre, where we can see a combination of dialogue, dance and music. It is considered to be one of the most ancient forms of Japanese theatre and its representations were the only moment when different social classes mixed together.

Nowadays nearly every single stage play is formed exclusively by men, dressed up with different, colourful costumes. Even though they do not wear any kind of mask, they completely transform their facial expression by applying keshou, a kind of make-up which is really characteristic, it is one of the fundamentals in this kind of theatre. Each colour has a different meaning, red is for heroes, as it represents vigour and passion; it might represent anger or other negative feelings associated with rage and fury. Indigo blue represents melancholy, whilst other like purple or black stand for arrogance and fear respectively.

This make-up is made to be tremendously exaggerated, and it is even more depending on the level of dramatism of the character. It becomes particularly intense if associated to someone with a 'supernatural' character.

Fence 9 - Stone bridge, Shikinaen Garden.

Ryukyu islands.

Shikinaen (識名園) was constructed in the end of the 18th century as the second residence for the Ryukyu kings. Its features are beautiful, relatively simple, wooden palace buildings in Okinawan style, red tile roofs and a spacious Japanese style landscape garden with a central pond. While the garden is designed in a style seen elsewhere in Japan, the architecture and flora give Shikinaen a uniquely Okinawan flavour

In 2000, Shikinaen was among those which were added to the list of UNESCO World Heritage Sites under the title Gusuku Sites and Related Properties of the Kingdom of Ryukyu.

The garden can be viewed from a 300-metre circular path, which leads through a forested area before reaching the pond. Two stone bridges connect to a small islet in the middle of the water and allow visitors to cross from one side of the pond to the other. A small hexagonal pavilion stands on a second islet. Artificial hills surround the pond and give the garden more vantage points and character.

Fence 10 - Japanese Gong.

Gong, sacred and ancestral instrument, venerated by warriors, emperors, princes and priests. Essential in Buddhist temples, where their notes mark the beginning and end of each day, call to the temple and changes in the sequences.

It has a powerful and deep metallic sound, of very long vibrations, that encompasses a great resonance and sound capacity. Due to this sound depth it is used in meditation sessions, as it causes a state of instantaneous consciousness.

Fence 11ab - Kanto Matsuri. Akita Festival.

The Kanto Matsuri (竿燈まつり, "pole lantern festival") is a Tanabata related celebration in Akita City, held every year from the 3rd to the 6th of August.

From out all the different actions which take place at the Akita festival, the most fascinating one, is how all the participants are able to keep the Kanto (long poles made out of bamboo with a paper lantern on the top) in equilibrium. These poles can reach a length of 12 metres and a weight of approximately 50 kilograms. They can have up to 46 paper lamps with lit candles inside them. Once the drums, flutes and songs start to sound ("Dokkoisho", "Dokkoisho"), each kanto is pulled up by only one person, which using different techniques makes it keep on equilibrium. Gradually, more extensions are added until the pole reaches its maximum height.

The main event of this festival are the night-time parades where different groups participate and there are approximately 250 kantos. This event takes place along Chuo Dori street in Akita.

Fence 12 - Mount Fuji.

Mount Fuji (富士山 a.k.a. Fujisan)

We can find it looking west from Tokyo, located between Yamanashi and Shizuoka.

It is an active volcano with a height of 3.776 metres, included in the list of Patrimony of Humanity, but above all, it is the most emblematic mountain of all of Japan.

It is considered as one of the Three Sacred Mountains in Japan, which are known as Sanreizan (三靈山) which are tremendously popular. Under this record, we find that only Mount Fuji receives over 300.000 annual visits.

Fence 13 - Sakura.

The cherry tree flower is seen as a metaphor of life, which is considered to be beautiful but at the same ephemeral. This is why it is so admired.

Cherry trees (Sakura Zensen) start blooming during March, the flowering front (Kaika Zensen) moves from Okinawa towards the north of the country, ending with the flowering of the cherry trees up in Hokkaidō during the month of May.

Japan's Meteorology Office annually predict the pattern the flowering front will follow so that everybody is able to search and find which will be the optimal locations to watch the flowering of the cherry trees. This is actually really important, as the cherry tree flower only lasts for one week, something that matches really well with the traditional Japanese spirit and ideology based upon the shortness and continuous movement of life.

Fence 14 - Mascot of the Tokyo 2020 Olympics.

Japanese illustrator Ryo Taniguchi.

Manga and gamer references are seen, in representation of the Japanese contemporary visual culture and with a character design inspired by the Tokyo 2020 Olympic Games' Logo.

The pair of futuristic characters combine tradition and innovation.

The name of the Olympics mascot, Miraitowa, fuses the Japanese words for future and eternity. Someity, the Paralympics mascot, is derived from Somei-yoshino, a type of cherry blossom, cherry blossom variety "Someiyoshino" and is a play on words with the English phrase "So mighty".

The two mascot designs were selected by elementary schoolchildren across Japan, Tokyo 2020 organizing committee president Yoshiro Mori said at the ceremony:

"These mascots are your friends," you have helped to pick them, and across the country five million children helped to pick this. And the name is also something we have picked together. So, this Olympics belongs to everyone."

Kabuki is a Japanese theatrical genre, where we can see a combination of dialogue, dance and music. It is considered to be one of the most ancient forms of Japanese theatre and its representations were the only moment when different social classes mixed together.

Nowadays nearly every single stage play is formed exclusively by men, dressed up with different, colourful costumes. Even though they do not wear any kind of mask, they completely transform their facial expression by applying keshou, a kind of make-up which is really characteristic, it is one of the fundamentals in this kind of theatre. Each colour has a different meaning, red is for heroes, as it represents vigour and passion; it might represent anger or other negative feelings associated with rage and fury. Indigo blue represents melancholy, whilst other like purple or black stand for arrogance and fear respectively.

This make-up is made to be tremendously exaggerated, and it is even more depending on the level of dramatism of the character. It becomes particularly intense if associated to someone with a 'supernatural' character.

Fence 16 - Hachiko.

Hachikō's statue, Shibuya (Tokyo)

Since 1924, Hidesaburo Ueno, professor at the University of Tokyo, and his puppy Akita, breed of the ancient guardians of the Emperors, became inseparable. Every day they walked to the Shibuya train station located in the centre of Tokyo where the dog waited for him until his return so that they could walk their way back home together. This routine lasted 2 years, until Ueno died of a cerebral haemorrhage while he was in class.

His wife donated Hachi to a new family, but he continued to wait for his former owner at the train station for 10 years. They began to publish Hachi's stories in local newspapers, and in 1934 a statue was erected in front of the Shibuya train station, with Hachi as the main guest at its inauguration.

A year later, in 1935, Hachiko died at the station, and was buried next to his owner at the Aoyama Cemetery in Tokyo.

This story was taken to the cinema in 1987 by the Japanese filmmaker Seijiro Kojama; the film, in black and white, is titled Hachiko Monogatari (The story of Hachiko). In 2009 a remake was made in the United States directed by Lasse Hallström under the title "Hachi: A Dog's Tale".

Fence 12 - Mount Fuji.

Mount Fuji (富士山 a.k.a. Fujisan)

We can find it looking west from Tokyo, located between Yamanashi and Shizuoka.

It is an active volcano with a height of 3.776 metres, included in the list of Patrimony of Humanity, but above all, it is the most emblematic mountain of all of Japan.

It is considered as one of the Three Sacred Mountains in Japan, which are known as Sanreizan (三霊山) which are tremendously popular. Under this record, we find that only Mount Fuji receives over 300.000 annual visits.

Fence 13 - Sakura.

The cherry tree flower is seen as a metaphor of life, which is considered to be beautiful but at the same ephemeral. This is why it is so admired.

Cherry trees (Sakura Zensen) start blooming during March, the flowering front (Kaika Zensen) moves from Okinawa towards the north of the country, ending with the flowering of the cherry trees up in Hokkaidō during the month of May.

Japan's Meteorology Office annually predict the pattern the flowering front will follow so that everybody is able to search and find which will be the optimal locations to watch the flowering of the cherry trees. This is actually really important, as the cherry tree flower only lasts for one week, something that matches really well with the traditional Japanese spirit and ideology based upon the shortness and continuous movement of life.

Fence 14 - Mascot of the Tokyo 2020 Olympics.

Japanese illustrator Ryo Taniguchi.

Manga and gamer references are seen, in representation of the Japanese contemporary visual culture and with a character design inspired by the Tokyo 2020 Olympic Games' Logo.

The pair of futuristic characters combine tradition and innovation.

The name of the Olympics mascot, Miraitowa, fuses the Japanese words for future and eternity. Someity, the Paralympics mascot, is derived from Somei-yoshino, a type of cherry blossom, cherry blossom variety "Someiyoshino" and is a play on words with the English phrase "So mighty".

The two mascot designs were selected by elementary schoolchildren across Japan, Tokyo 2020 organizing committee president Yoshiro Mori said at the ceremony:

"These mascots are your friends," you have helped to pick them, and across the country, ... five million children helped to pick this. And the name is also something we have picked together. So, this Olympics belongs to everyone."
